

Just bought house in December, 2012. First started w/bathroom light turning on and off, thinking power surging (whatever). I slept in the front bedroom 1 night and felt and heard things like something dripping, so I have slept in living room ever since. Well Scott slept in there more days, don't really know how many? In the middle of the night the T.V. turned on the volume raised and then turned back off. I was sleeping, Scott heard it that night, I heard it the following night but it turned on the T.V. but it sounded like a radio with static, we unplugged it but there is still weird things happening. We took pictures up in the attic a whole bunch of orbs in several pics. We google this address and found out that someone committed suicide on my birthday April the 15, 2007. I feel like one is a woman and her name begins with a C, but we also have a man's voice recorded.